Road patrol complaint amended

By RICHARD GOLD

It may be "some time" before Circuit Court Judge Thomas J. Foley rules on the fight over the Wayne County Sheriff's Road Patrol, says Louis Wechsler, attorney for the seven embattled townships.

Nonetheless, Wechsler has taken action to expedite any ruling that may come from the Circuit Court.

On Jan. 21, Wechsler filed an amended complaint alleging that the current level of protection the seven western Wayne County townships receive is inadequate, and the road patrol should be augmented.

The fight between the seven townships; Huron, Canton, Plymouth, Northville, Brownstown, Van Buren and Sumpter and the county has been going on for almost four years as a result of the county efforts to reduce funding for the road patrol.

In August, 1974, the county commission attempted to stop funding the patrol altogether and it was at that time that Wechsler was hired. He filed for an injunction in Foley's court and won.

Several days after the injunction was granted, the county funded the last three months of fiscal 1974 (September-November).

When the county budgeted the road patrol for 1975, it allocated only $350,000—effectively cutting the budget 25 per cent from the 1974 level of $467,000.

Although obligated by law to provide the road patrol, the county asked the townships to chip in $97,000 for the sheriff.

While the original suit asked for a declaratory judgement, it was, according to Wechsler, directed primarily at getting an injunction.

As a result of the new budget and the demand for funds, Wechsler filed the amended complaint. It asks the court make a declaratory judgment that the county fund the road patrol entirely; states that the current level of protection is grossly inadequate; and asks that until that judgment is made, the court enjoin the county "from reducing the funding level below that of 1974."

Currently, the seven townships, which comprise over 200 square miles, are protected by 28 patrolmen. This averages out to between two and three cars a shift, a figure that Dick Novak, commander of the road patrol and Undersheriff Loren Pittman also find "inadequate."

On Thursday, Jan. 23, the County's Ways and Means Committee approved a $30,000 increase in the road patrol budget. The county will allocate an additional $10,000 for each of the months of February March and April.

When Judge Foley holds the next hearing on the case, scheduled for Jan. 31, Wechsler contends the county lawyers will argue that no declaratory judgment is necessary because the funding has been restored to the level of last year. Wechsler also expects the lawyers for the county to argue that the issue is political in nature and should not be decided in court.

Wechsler will counter with several points. He will argue that:

•The Wayne County Board of Commissioners is charged with the statutory duty of providing all funds necessary for the sheriff to fulfill his legal duties.

•The sheriff has been funded since 1919 in this manner.

•If the original lawsuit hadn't been filed, the county wouldn't have funded the sheriff for the last quarter of 1974 or for any of 1975.

•The budget for 1975 has been trimmed 25 per cent anyway.

•The reduction in the budget will cause the patrol to be reduced 25 per cent from 28 men to 21.

•This reduction will allow the Sheriff to dispatch only two cars on the day shift and only one at night, not counting sick days, vacation times or other authorized abcenses.

•The sheriff has said that with the reduction in manpower the road patrol won't cover the rural areas of the township because of the lack of manpower for back-up.

•The operational history of the road patrol shows that the force has already been depleted from 43 men in 1967 while complaint and accidents figures have remained stable.

•According to the Sheriff's top officers, at least 40 men are needed to patrol the seven townships adequately

Wechsler says that no decision will be made at the Jan. 31 hearing, but he is confident the court will make a declaratory judgment "sometime in the future."

The attorney also indicated the chance for an out-of-court negotiated settlement is remote. He adds, "The supervisors want a declaratory judgment, I don't think they will settle for this partial funding all the time."

Center's plans move forward

PLYMOUTH—The dream of providing a teaching center to serve the Plymouth Community School District moved one step closer toward reality last week as the program directors paid a visit to Plymouth last week.

Meeting with administrators and teachers, British educators Gordon Hill and Malcolm McDonald, discussed the planning of the "Center for Advanced Study of Education" in which the Plymouth Schools will be particiapting starting July 1.

The main purpose of the center, according to Hill, will be to provide a "base for the continuing in-service education of teachers." The center will serve the Plymouth schools, as well as the Northville and Novi School Districts, which are sharing the cost of the year-long project.

The summer session will involve extensive planning by Hill and McDonald, with input from teachers, parents and administrators in all three school districts.

BY FALL the actual in-service program will begin with the objective of "increasing the competency of all teachers in the areas of innovation and curriculum development."

Hill and McDonald are regarded as well qualified in the field of "open education" through their involvement in a program in the Stafford-Leys County Primary School in Leicester, England.

Hill noted, however that he prefers the term, "flexible education," hoping that the center will provide teachers with the tools to recognize and serve the individual needs of students.

Both Hill and McDonald stressed the necessity of involvement by teachers and administrators in the districts in designing the program.

"We recognize that there are many excellent teachers and there are many ways they can share their skills with other teachers," Hill noted.

"Sometimes teachers tend to keep things to themselves, and what we'd like to do is to make sure teachers with identical problems get together and show that they aren't alone."

EQUALLY IMPORTANT in the structure of the program is involvement by parents, according to Hill.

"None of the programs we've been involved with would have worked if parents hadn't been involved," he said.

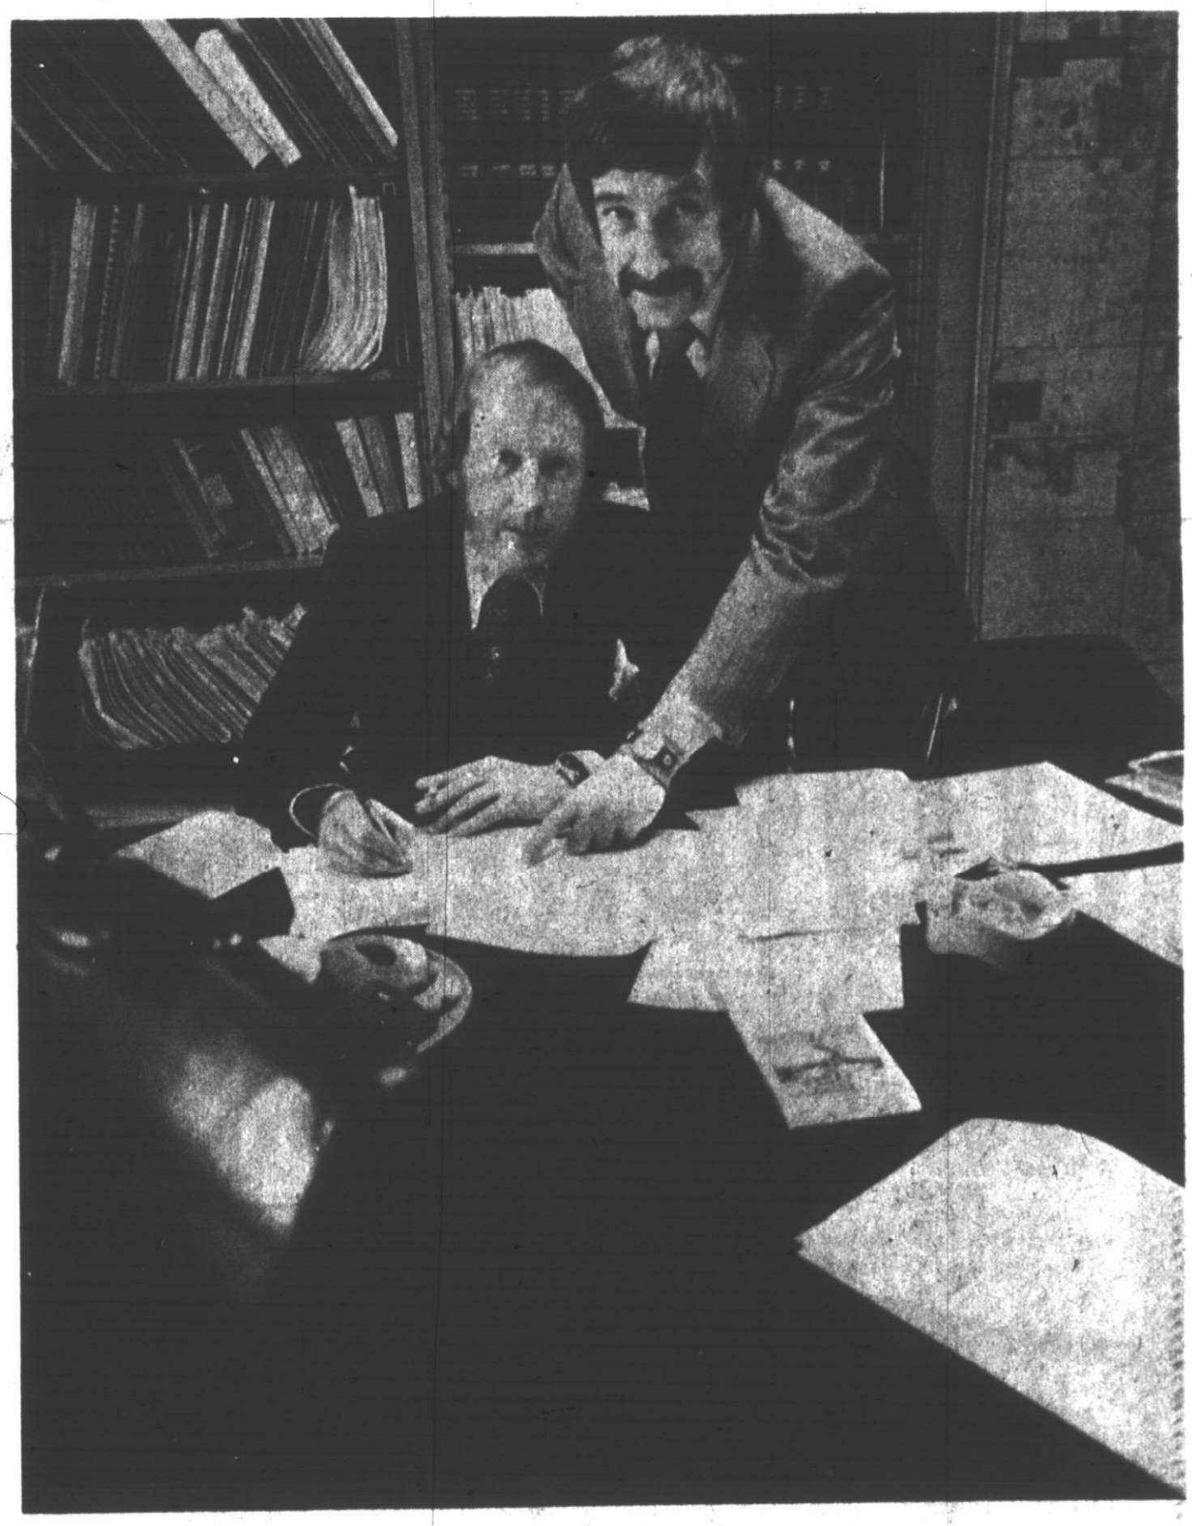

McDonald added that because of the many swift changes in the educational field, parents have been left behind in knowing what is going on in schools.

"This leaves the door open for reactionaries to get parents riled up. We've found that many doubts expressed by parents are now being proven true.

"Leaving some things to chance wasn't right." McDonald said. "We have to harness the innate teaching ability of a mother."

Hill's background includes the academic areas of social sciences and humanities, and an avocation of being one of England's top soccer referees. He explained that perhaps referees and the like were held in a little higher esteem outside of the U.S.

McDonald will bring to the center expertise in the areas of language arts, dance and drama.

ENGLISH VISITORS Gordon Hill and Malcolm McDonald, will likely soon lose their "visitor" status once the teaching center opens this summer for teachers in Plymouth, Novi and Northville. The British educators will head the year-long project designed to provide in-service training for "flexible education." (Staff photo by Bob Woodring)

Townships gain licensing powers

By RICHARD GOLD

Canton and Plymouth townships will no longer need to enlist state or county aid when dealing with commercial enterprises that fail to use good business practices or meet local health and safety standards.

In December 1974, the Michigan State Legislature passed Public Act 375. The law gives townships the right to license and punish businessmen who fail to meet local standards.

According to Colonel Joseph A. Parisi, executive director of the Michigan Townships Association, the law was "long overdue."

He said, "The reason for this law is that for the past six years or so we have noticed a trend where undesirable businesses have been spilling over into the townships. Cities, which have always had this licensing power have been using it and the businessess that couldn't get licenses in the city have been moving into the surrounding townships.

"THE PROBLEM was getting progressively worse so we pushed for some legislation to prevent any more of a problem."

The result of the township associations' push for more local control was Public Act 375.

Parisi was most enthused by the act. He said, "It gives any township the same rights as a big city like Detroit. Even a little rural township up in northern Michigan has the same rights as Detroit when it comes to licensing and dealing with local businessmen."

According to the Parisi, businesses would be licensed once a year. If anyone failed to comply with local health and safety standards they could be denied a license renewal—effectively putting them out of business.

In fact, however, a business with a bad record moving into a township could be denied a license originally. Businesses with bad records that were given licenses could be forced to post a performance bond guaranteeing they would conform to local business standards. If these businesses failed to comply with the township guidelines they would forfeit the money they put up for the performance bond.

Consumer problems, if they were widespread enough, could also be reason not to grant license renewal. Parisi explained, "Consumer problems are usually individual complaints and would most likely be a civil matter; but if a problem was widespread enough throughout a township, the township board could take action against the business."

CANTON OFFICIALS were excited about the new law, and Clerk John Flodin commented, "I definitely think there is merit in it. I think we should keep licensing fees low so we don't discourage more businesses from coming to the township."

He added, "Right now I don't know of any disreputable merchants in Canton, with the possible exception of some itinerants. But it would be foolish to think that we will always be free of disreputable merchants."

Flodin commented that licensing would help the board keep track of who is doing business in the township. "I don't think the businessmen will grumble—I think most good businessmen would be in favor of licensing."

Bart Berg, president of the Canton Chamber of Commerce agreed that licensing would be a good idea, but he had some reservations. "It would depend on what standards and inspection guidelines Canton uses. I would hope they wouldn't be overly stringent. If they do find people that don't come up to standard, I think they should have some sort of grace period for a businessman to come up to standard."

CANTON Treasurer Carl Parsell, saw multiple benefits in the licensing law.

"It'll help us locate and collect property taxes from businesses, as well as regulate any dishonest business practices. The act will also be helpful for our consumer council. Presently, they have no legal tools, but with the licensing law it'll give the council some punch.

"Already we had a problem with a firm that was advertising improperly. It was a case of misrepresentation and we had to turn it over to the county consumer agency for action. Now we will have some immediate control over this sort of dishonest business practice."

Parsell also felt that the licensing provision would help attract new businesses and keep reputable firms happy.

"We don't look at this as a restrictive ordinance, but rather as one that will encourage good businesses to come to the township. Of course, businesses that are operating in a shoddy manner will suffer under this ordinance," he added.

As far as guidelines were concerned, Parsell said that the township board would look at "the accepted ways" other jurisdictions use.

He commented, "We will try to combine the best guidelines of all the areas we look at. We may fall short, but I am hopeful that we can come up

Schools delay budget cuts

PLYMOUTH—A search for ways to trim $150,000 from the Plymouth School District budget has been halted for the present.

Meeting last Saturday, the board rescinded an earlier directive to look for up to $300,000 in possible budget cuts in the 1974-75 expenses to make up for an anticipated loss of $150,000 in state school aid.

The actual loss in aid hit closer to the $44,000 level. The board also learned that total revenues for the district had increased by $125,000 which was offset by an accompanying increase in projected expenditures.

The current status of the budget, as projected, would leave the district dipping into reserve fund equity monies for about $80,000.

THE BULK of Saturday's 4½-hour meeting was spent with board members discussing philosophies on the use of the fund equity monies for operations.

School Supt. John M. Hoben explained that the fund equity does not necessarily represent cash on hand but includes items like prepaid insurance, accounts receivable from outstanding grants for programs, delinquent taxes and inventories of supplies.

According to the district's financial director, Ray Hoedel, the board has the responsibility to determine a reasonable fund equity for the district. He noted that recommended levels for fund equities established by the Muncipal Finance Commission are from eight to 12 per cent of the total budget, or approximately the equivalent of one month's spending for a municipality or school district. The Plymouth district's budgeted fund equity in June of last year was $632,657, or approximately half of the MFC recommended level.

BOARD MEMBERS considered whether to make the budget adjustments during the current school year, or try to replace the projected loss from the fund equity during the next fiscal year beginning July 1, 1975.

The $80,000 was basically reflected by a budgeting error in the maintenance department salaries. Original budget figures had failed to include a seven per cent hike in salaries to mainteriance employes and the addition of an additional custodian at Central Elementary school.

The board approved, for the present time, a revised budget of $15,105,000, which includes tapping the fund equity for the $80,000 figure. But the board left open the possibility of trimming the budget over the next two months as they conduct a review of the current budget while looking ahead to budgeting for the next school year.

The board will also be considering the possibility of holding a millage election sometime this year, to seek incresed funding for several programs which have been studied, but have not been implemented due to lack of funding.

Crestwood future bright, MEA chiefs predict

By DENNY COFFMAN

SOUTHFIELD—Michigan Education Association officials Thursday were optimistic about restoring good school board-teacher-parent relations in Crestwood.

"There are positive things beginning in Crestwood," said Keith Geiger, MEA president. "We're getting good feedback from the classrooms. There is no doubt in my mind that we can make education in Crestwood better than it was at this time last year."

Geiger and Herman Coleman, MEA executive secretary, said they expected discussion between the Crestwood Board of Education and the Crestwood Education Association to resume today (Monday).

GEIGER SAID "quality" education was being restored at all three levels—elementary, intermediate and high school—in the Crestwood District, and that attendance was higher than normal for this time of year—90 per cent.

"Normally it takes seven to 10 years for a school district to resume normal operations after teachers have been fired," said Coleman.

He said he was disappointed, however, that the Michigan Supreme Court had set aside an appellate court's order to submit all unresolved issues to compulsory arbitration pending a hearing by the high court March 4.

AN MEA proposal to a House committee working on new public employee collective bargaining legislation calls for levying financial penalties on school boards if a board is found guilty of "bargaining in bad faith."

The MEA suggested the courts be allowed to assess extra millage against the school district.

Financial penalties against teachers' unions bargaining in bad faith already exist, in the form of salary losses, contends the MEA.

THE THREAT of a loss of state aid is insufficient pressure on both parties, said Geiger.

The MEA plan would require intensive bargaining five days prior to the start of the school year, with teachers permitted to strike the first day of class.

The strike would be limited to the point when only 180 days remain in the school year, the number of days required by state law. The contract would then be submitted to binding arbitration.

Under the MEA proposal, a teacher strike would be limited to about four or five weeks.

Area centers offer classes

The University of Michigan's statewide certificate real estate program will offer 40 evening classes throughout the state this winter beginning the week of Feb. 10.

Many of the classes will be offered in nearby centers in Ann Arbor, Dearborn, Detroit and Southfield.

JA marks special week

Junior Achievement Week will be celebrated throughout southeastern Michigan Jan. 26 through Feb. 1, complete with contests, mayoral proclamations and achiever recognition.

Kicking off the week's events was a sales fair at Westland Center. The high school members of about 50 Junior Achievement (JA) companies set up display booths and sold their handmade JA products to weekend shoppers during the two-day sale Saturday and Sunday.

Ten outstanding JA members will be honored at the Economic Club Monday, Jan. 26, and will be seated at the head table with Bob McBride, JA Week general chairman and WJBK-TV2 station manager.

Open houses will be held Jan. 26-27 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the 24 JA centers throughout the six-county area including Wayne County.

Parents, teachers and interested members of the community are welcome to visit the centers in their area during the week.

On Tuesday, city officials from all municipalities throughout southeastern Michigan will proclaim JA Week in their areas.

Contests will highlight the week. The top product of the year will be selected at the Engineering Society of Detroit Wednesday afternoon from among the best 10 to be chosen from more than 300 entries.

Junior Achievement of Southeastern Michigan's outstanding businessman and businesswoman will be chosen at a noon luncheon to be held Saturday at the new Michigan Inn Hotel in Southfield.

Eight finalists will compete for the titles. Forty-eight semi- finalists, voted the outstanding business people at the 24 JA centers, also will be honored guests at the luncheon.

Junior Achievement Night at Olympia will culminate the week's activities.

Members of Junior Achievement will meet the Detroit Jr. Wings, watch the hockey team play against Welland, Ont., and hold their hockey compeitition following the game. Friends and relatives of JA members are welcome to attend.

The events of the week will be keyed to demonstrate the accomplishments of the high school students in the JA program of economic education and to recognize them for their involvement.

Long forgotten history resides here...

By DARLENE STINSON

Buildings, skyscrapers and factories may one day fill the skyline of the Plymouth-Canton area, but memories of fields and forests and old farmhouses will echo from behind gravestones of long-dead settlers.

Tucked away in municipally-owned cemeteries in the City of Plymouth and Canton Township are the remains of men, women and children who tilled the fields and laughed with friends long before the roar of cars and planes disturbed the quiet countryside.

Dates marking the end of life in Canton's Downer, Kenyon and Sheldon cemeteries and Plymouth's Old Baptist and Riverside date from the early 1800s. But the cemeteries will remain long after gravestones are worn smooth and decendants are long-since dead, marking a state of permanence in a constantly changing society.

MICHIGAN LAW, unlike that of some states and European countries where cemeteries are filling too much of the land, stipulates the permianence of cemeteries and requires a Circuit Court order to move them, according to George Bruce, executive secretary of the State Cemetery Commission.

"In Michigan there's no problem with land or cemeteries," Bruce said. "If you want to move a cemetery, you have a problem on your hands."

Canton Township Clerk John Flodin summed up public sentiment toward the matter.

"I think they (Canton cemeteries) are here forever. I would hope 100 years hence they don't build a house on top of me. I would hate to think we'd lose faith with our early citizens."

Canton Township acquired custody of its three cemeteries years ago, when cemetery associations abandoned the land, according to Canton Treasurer Carl Parsell. State law requires townships to maintain abandoned cemeteries in such instances, he said.

"We were kind of willed these cemeteries," Parsell explained. "We're now the appointed caretakers."

SHELDON CEMETERY, located across Sheldon Road from an old abandoned farmhouse just north of Michigan Ave., is the only cemetery of Canton's three that still remains active, Parsell said. Children and grandchildren still visit deceased relatives there, and an occasional burial pierces the usual stillness.

Some township officials suspect that Father Time has bypassed the old graveyard, where many gravestones date from the mid-19th century and the etchings of others are worn smooth with wind and time.

The township's Department of Public Works still charges $75 for grave openings in the old cemetery, noted Parsell, who called for a study of current grave opening prices at a recent board of trustees meeting.

"If we're going to maintain this cemetery, I don't think it should be charity," Parsell said. "I think we should be in line with today's prices."

Flodin said the township "probably spends several thousand dollars a year" to mow and maintain Sheldon Cemetery. A new fencing project, expected to run around $1,500, is scheduled for this spring.

DOWNER CEMETERY, on Michigan Ave. east of Haggerty, received a new fence last fall, Flodin said, to discourage vandals who knocked over gravestones,

Downer, like Kenyon Cemetery on the corner of Ridge and Gyde Roads, has been inactive for years, Flodin said, and the living rarely tread its grounds.

"This cemetery, in particular, is extremely old," Flodin said of Downer. "I'm 53, and I've lived in Canton all my life. I can't remeber a burial there in my lifetime. As a child, I walked around that Downer Cemetery, and I remember the graves being very old."

Flodin said the DPW mows the grass in Kenyon and Downer cemeteries from time to time, but local Boy Scout and Girl Scout troops and 4-H Club members perform most of the maintenance tasks.

A shroud of mystery envelopes a small, ancient cemetery in Plymouth Township, overlooking North Territorial from a knoll in the township's northeast corner.

"I DIDN'T even know it was there, until it was called to our attention in 1967," said former township supervisor John McEwen. "When I went out there, all the gravestones were knocked over, and the place was a real mess. No one had cleaned it up for years. It was apparently a family plot."

The most recent date on gravestones in the cemetery read 1878, McEwen recalled. After checking records with the county and the State Cemetery Commission, McEwen concluded that many of the bodies had been moved to another site.

"It's very possible the whole cemetery was moved," McEwen said. "We do know that a lot of bodies were moved at one time or another."

McEwen said the township's Department of Public Works at one time cleaned the old cemetery up. The small plot is almost forgotten now.

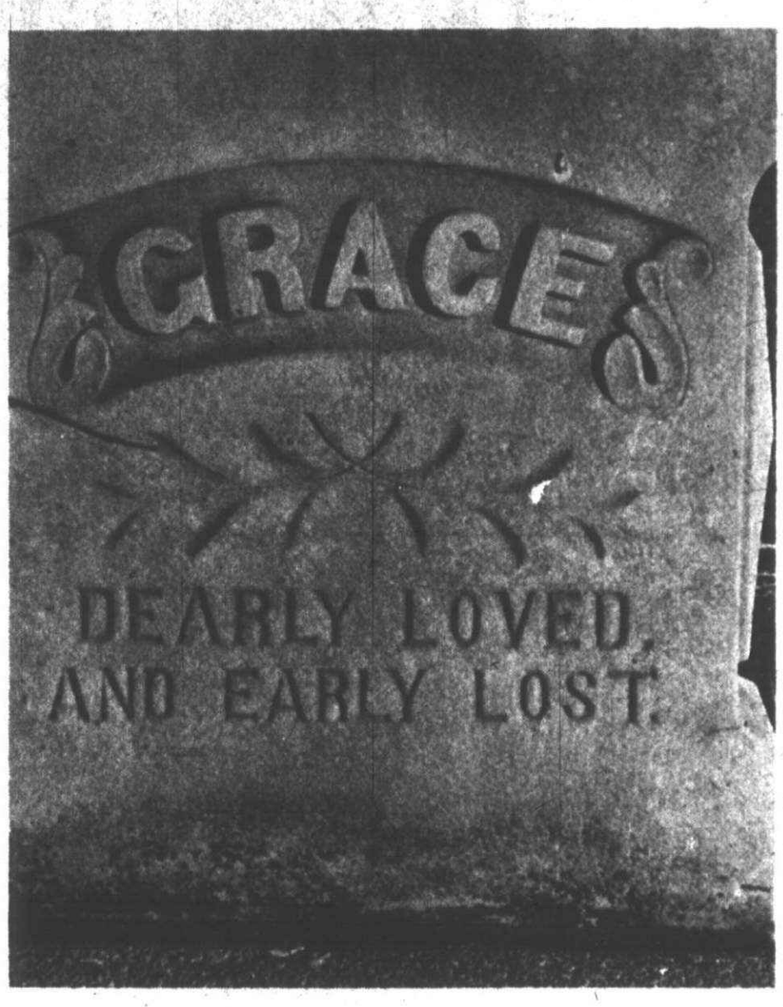

By far the most active municipally-owned cemetery in the area is Riverside, located on Plymouth Road across from Burroughs, where 100 to 125 burials take place each year, according to Linnea Salow, deputy clerk for the City of Plymouth.

MRS. SALOW said the city purchased the land, then located in Plymouth Township, in 1877 for cemetery purposes. The land was later annexed to the city.

The city budgeted around $63,000 for 1975 operation and maintenance of Riverside, she said. The price of grave opinings in the cemetery costs far more that Canton's $75-price tag, running from $175 to $195 for residents and $200 to $220 for non-residents. This includes grass runners and casket lowering devices.

Located at the end of Pearl next to the railroad tracks in the City of Plymouth is the Old Baptist Cemetery.

Surrounded by a fence and houses in the midst of the city, the cemetery is inactive now, and no burials ever take place there, according to Mrs. Salow. The city inherited the cemetery in the 1850s or 60s, Mrs. Salow said, when a private organization abandoned it.

MAKING THINGS just a little bit friendlier at various Michigan Employment Security Commission offices is the job of John Sperry (center) of the Carling Brewery Caravan. A friendly gesture at MESC

PLYMOUTH—A welcome wagon at the Michigan Employment Security Commission office? Not exactly, but the Carling Brewery has a "community service caravan" that visits area unemployment offices and distributes coffee and doughnuts.

On Thursday the van and its crew came to the Plymouth MESC office at 7 a.m. and began distributing refreshments.

The van has been in operation for two weeks and has visited six MESC offices. Eleven more will be visited before the route begins again. According to Al Szymanski, district manager of the Carling Brewery, and one of the three men who man the van, they will continue to give away coffee and doughnuts at local MESC offices "until the economy shapes up."

Szymanski explains the operation, "We feel that since the community has contributed to us, we should contribute back." He says the cost of the operation "is small."

Each van costs $44,000 and the brewery now has 13 in operation all over the nation. But Szymanski adds, "Listen, our company spent $125,000 for a one minute advertisement on television during the super bowl. Some guy could get up and go to the bathroom and miss it.We could buy three vans for that and generate a lot more good will besides helping the community."

So far, the most depressed area the van has visited has been Mt. Clemens. "We distributed 45 gallons of coffee there in one day."

According to Szmanski and his colleagugs, John Sperry and Han Garlecz "traffic at the Plymouth MESC office has been light." Adds Szymanski, "They must have a lot of help or a good operation here, because we haven't seen any lines here."

The van stays either one or two days at each office, depending on the number of people at each individual MESC office, and while they didn't return on Friday, they expect to be back at the Plymouth MESC office in the "near future."

The treasurer also said, "We are going to make the licensing fees minimal. This is not a fund raising measure, it is a licensing law and that's what's good about it. We want to emphasize the license, not the money."

Plymouth Township officials had little to say about the matter. Supervisor J. D. McLaren said, "I think it would be wise to withhold comment until we have a printed copy of the law and are able to study it."

AMITY HALL, in which dances, theatricals and book auctions were held in the 1890s. Located on Main Street, opposite Kellogg Park, the hall occupied the upper story. Built in 1869, the building was destroyed by fire in 1893. (From "Pictures of Plymouth Past and Present" with permission of the author)

Theatricals popular in 1890 Plymouth

(Part II)

PLYMOUTH—PAST AND PRESENT by Sam Hudson

Many entries in Mamie Conner's 1890 journal are evidence that theater performances, professional and amateur, helped Plymouthites to forget the cares of the day during the years Benjamin Harrison was president of the United States. Mamie was a frequent visitor to the theater, in Detroit and Ann Arbor as well as in Plymouth.

In Plymouth, on Jan. 14, 1890, she watched Mullanay's Troupe do "Ten Nights in a Bar-Room." A week later she saw Vreeland and Middaugh's "Uncle Tom's Cabin Company," which, she noted, "was a sell."

Most of the shows were held in Amity Hall, located on the second floor of a brick building on Main Street, facing Kellogg Park. It was there on Feb. 8 that Mamie saw "Falsely Accused." She was impressed by the fact that she, Eva Leach and Mary Rodgers were the only girls in the audience. In February, she attended four performances of the 'Umatilla Indian Show," also in Amity Hall.

MAMIE USUALLY rated the shows she attended. On March 11, 1890, "Little Trixie" was only fair. On April 29, the "Wizard Oil Open Air Concert" in the park was pretty good.

On June 2, Adele Carleton's production of "Fanchon the Cricket" was "horrid." Four nights later the Carleton actors redeemed themselves with a good performance of "East Lynne," which Mamie enjoyed with Eva Leach, Harry McClumpha and Bert Bennett.

For Mamie Conner the highlight of the 1890 theatrical season was the April 15 appearance of the noted Shakespearian actor Edwin Booth at the Detroit Opera House. Booth, the brother of the man who shot Lincoln, played Hamlet to Helena Modjeska's Ophelia.

"It was simply grand," declared Mamie, noting that she and her party sat in the dress circle. On Oct. 30, of the same year Mamie went to Whitney's in Detroit to see "Daniel Boone, the Pioneer." Her only comment in the journal was "five trained horses were on the stage."

On Jan. 28, 1892, Mamie attended two performances in Detroit. At Whitney's she saw "Byron, the Plunger." At the Opera House she saw Modjeska, again, this time in "Countess Rondine." She didn't get home until 4:30 a.m.

OTHER PLAYS Miss Conner saw in the early 1890s include "Kathlene," "The Fellow That Looks Like Me," "Divorce," "The Sea King," "Left-handed Charlie," "The Last Days of Pompeii," "Evangeline," "Peaceful Valley," and "Indigo."

In 1892, Mamie reported a full house and a good show at a performance of Frank Tucker's Minstrel Show at the Plymouth Opera House. The Opera House, over the Village Hall took over in 1893 as the place for theatricals in Plymouth.

In that year Amity Hall, which had been built in 1869, was destroyed by the fire that wiped out most of the business block on Main Street facing Kellogg Park.

On May 27, 1892, Mamie went to Ann Arbor to see a University of Michigan student production of "The Damnation of Faust." She liked it.

On April 10 and 11, 1890, Mamie was one of the cast of an amateur production of "The Peek Sisters," staged at Amity Hall. Put on to raise funds for charity, the show was the women's answer to a minstrel show the men of the village had presented and which the ladies believed they could top.

IN THE CAST, besides Mamie Conner, were Anna Taft, Lusina Robinson, Kate Allen, Carrie Hillmer, Sarah Cook, Carrie Bennett, and three others not identified. Songs in the show included "After the Ball Was Over," and "Evelina."

Mamie went to rehersals 14 times prior to the opening. On the day before the show, she helped decorate Amity Hall and attended dress rehearsal until 11:30 p.m.

The two-night stand brought in $150. "All went off nicely," Mamie recorded in her journal on closing night. On the day after she went to the ahll and "took home the curtains."

Church-related activities occupied some of Mamie Conner's time. On Feb. 23, 1890, she went to a WCTU meeting at the church. On March 16 she attended a lecture on race problems by Bruard Tyrell, a black. On March 23, she went to a Baptist missionary concert which she walked out on, pronouncing it "horrid."

Mamie's friend, Bert Roe, sang in various church choirs and at funerals. Her girl friend, Eva Leach, played the organ and Mamie often went to the Presbyterian Church to pump the organ while Eva practiced.

ON SUNDAY, Jan. 3, 1892, the choir was absent at the Presbyterian Church. Clarence Stevens, who was then 27, played and sang, notes Mamie in her journal. Stevens who died a few years ago at the age of 103, was a teacher and, in his later years, a well-known piano tuner.

Since the Conner Hardware store faced Kellogg Park, Mamie had only to step across the street to attend a noon-time band concert. (Mamie took care of the books at the store and the notation "took trial balance" occurs repeatedly in her journal).

On Jan. 25, 1890, she listened to a "10-cent concert" which ended with a demonstration of magic. On April 16, she particularly enjoyed the band's rendition of "The Hunter's Song."

(Part III will cover masquerades, socials, candy-pulls and other pleasures of the past in Plymouth).

Laurentians offer it all

Gray Rocks Inn -- No.1 ski school resort

By TOM DONOGHUE
Sports Editor

After years of being a "rocking chair skier"— the time was now to see how the real skier lives, in his conquest of slope and snow.

And to take on this challenge of actually putting on a pair of ski boots and even a set of skis...it was off to the Laurentian Mountains in Quebec, Canada.

A flight to Montreal was first in order, followed by a 74-mile drive up the Autoroute.

At the conclusion of mile 74, I found myself at the front door of a cozy, recreational resort accommodating 450.

I was about to embark upon a ski week at Biff and Tom Wheeler's Gray Rocks Inn located in the St. Jovite area, under the watchful eye of Real Charette's Snow Eagle Ski School.

The Snow Eagles have 40 fulltime instructors, all certified by the Canadian Ski Instructors Alliance. With this number on the payroll, the classes usually range from eight to 12 students per instructor.

The ski week begins with a Sunday evening movie and introduction period, and then it's quickly into hour one Monday morning.

First there was getting use to standing on skis and learning how and how not to fall.

Next came the grading of skiers (and I use that word loosely at the this stage) into classes of ability. I was right at rock bottom, class 36 I believe.

Everyone is assigned to a class and can progress or be set back accordingly.

The Snow Eagles use the short ski progression method of teaching during sessions from 10 a.m. to noon and from 2-4 p.m.

My opening conquest was a slope of not more than two- or three- feet. Then came the magic of the snowplow.

Day one ended with a great sense of accomplishment — I had not fallen and had mastered the art of snowplowing.

Day two, Tuesday, opened with me progressing up a class, under the eyes of Chris Lloyd. It was right into paralleling and then came the infamous T-bar.

My first adventure with the T-bar had me clinging to the pole and monkey hang for dear life. The skis didn't do what I had hoped for them...they crossed, and I and my partner, a young lass from Buffalo, N.Y., went tumbling down the mountain.

Attempt number four mastered the T-bar and parallel turning rounded out the day's chores.

Day three was my final push, and first year instructor Randy Banks from North Carolina got the call, class 31.

I was starting to enjoy skiing and still had not fallen. Just before the lunch break, our class ventured forth to a steeper slope, one I had cast dirty looks at before.

And needless to say, wipe-out number one was performed in graceful style.

A parallel turn that was supposed to be wasn't and over I went... skis in the air down the slope on my back some 500 feet. Arriving to a standing ovation from my class, I noticed that everyone laughs with you, not at you.

Day four and five, Thursday and Friday, it was work on paralleling and parallel turns and onto the chair lift. Saturday morning is race time and the 30 some odd classes are broken down into three divisions.

It was ski around the flag time and a second place in the novice earned a silver pin.

MAKING IT A COMPLETE HAUL on the practice run before the races

DOING A LITTLE HOT-DOGGING of his own.

TAKING THE TURNS through the flags on race day is Sports Editor Tom Donoghue.

If you are looking for that special teaching method with special effects, Gray Rocks isn't the place. Attitude and friendship is the key and Quebec's first resort had it all to offer.

At Gray Rocks, a various assortment of colorful ski outfits and the latest of all equipment is not expected and not really looked for.

There doesn't seem to be the pretense of trying to impress everyone on the Gray Rocks slopes.

There are no great challenging slopes or heart stopping descents.What there is, is down to earth honest instruction and an intense week of good old fashioned fun.

There are sleigh bell rides and hot wine parties for the classes after ski hours and an all-around general atmosphere that has made the Snow Eagle school and Gray Rocks the "Dean of the Laurentians."

The ski season at Gray Rocks goes from Nov. 20 to the beginning of May. Average snow is 165 inches with base around the 48 inch mark to 12 feet in spots.

There are five novice, six intermediate and seven expert runs with the longest run - one mile.

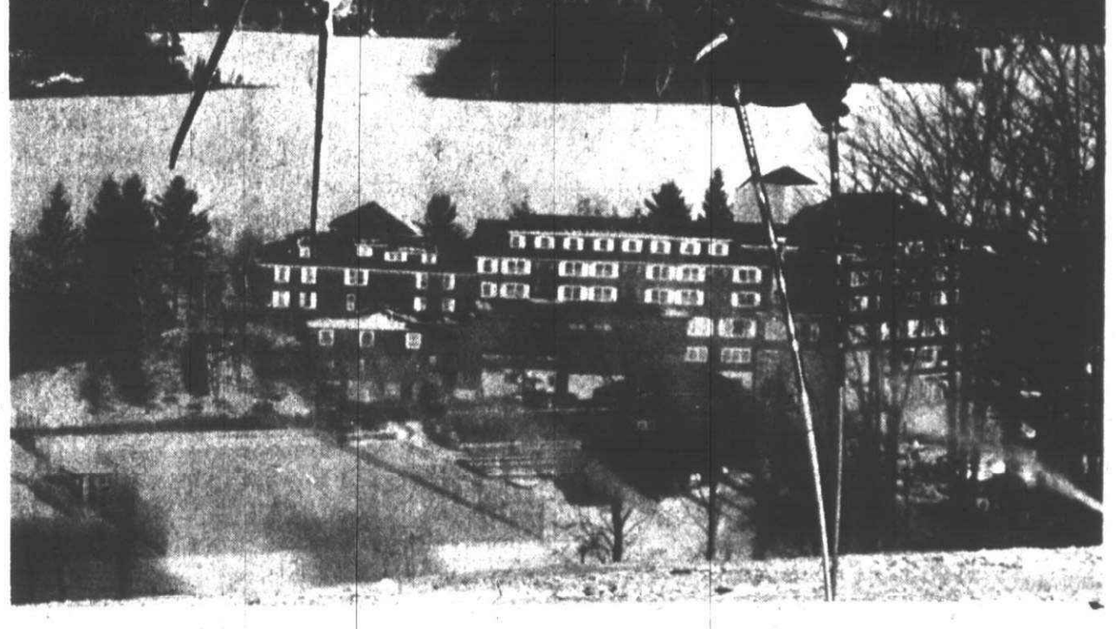

Gray Rocks has two double chair lifts and two T-bars with uphill capacity at 4,300 per hour. Everything that you would possiblity want and need can be rented.

The ski week package, which was created by Real Chareete, includes three of the most exquisite meals per day, lift tickets, and 22 hours of lessons along with complete entertainment program (dancing seven nights a week).

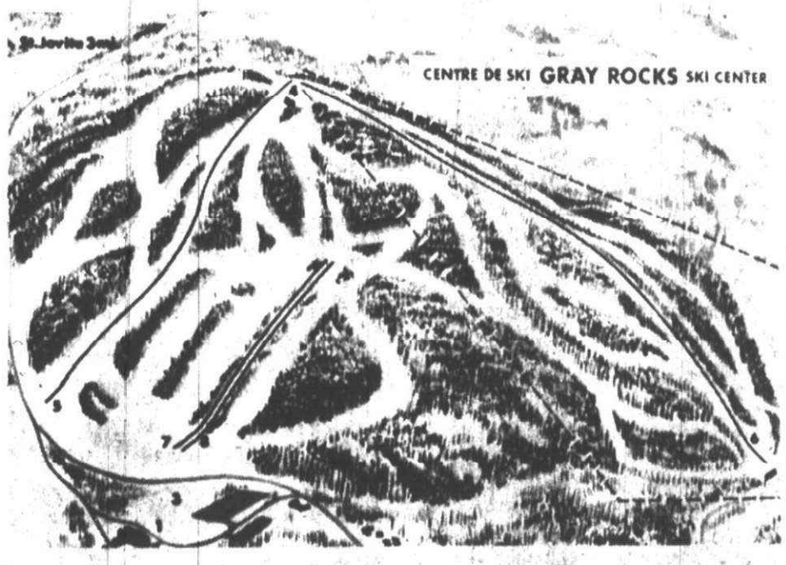

The cost per person per week starts at $151.50.

Gray Rocks - the Dean of the Laurentians, has been tabbed with the "hell-bent-for teaching attitude" and can only be surpassed by the atmosphere created by the people there.

Yearning to learn how to ski or to just sharpen up on the style ...give Gray Rocks an honest shot. I am going back up, lookout class 29.

INSTRUCTOR ERIC SKAT PETERSEN does the hot-dogging on the slope above the Gray Rocks Inn.

You can be well protected without belonging to a group.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield announce two new Plans with better benefits and more coverage for people on their own.

Not everyone works for a company with a Blue Cross and Blue Shield group plan. Some people work for themselves. Some people work for very small businesses. Some people have retired early. And they all need a lot of help in paying hospital and doctor bills.

So, Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan have prepared new health care protection plans for people who can't join us at work. Our new Plans provide more protection against rising costs. In fact, they provide very nearly the same kind of coverage as a basic Blue Cross and Blue Shield group plan.

Our New No. 1 Plan pays the full cost of your semi-private hospital room, the full cost of intensive care and other special care units and the full cost of covered hospital services in any participating hospital up to 120 days. Maternity care is provided on all contracts after 270 days of coverage.

Medical-Surgical Benefits include your physician's reasonable and customary charges for all generally accepted surgery, and unlimited days of medical care while you are hospitalized, plus consultations and surgical assistance in the hospital. Up to $15 per physician is provided for first aid. For x-rays, radiation treatments, electrocardiograms and certain other services, you pay your physician $5 (or 10% of the reasonable charge, whichever is greater).

Monthly subscription rates for our new No. 1 Plan are $29.01 for a one-person contract, $50.77 for a two-person contract, and $53.61 for a family.

Our New No. 2 Plan provides identical benefits except that you share the cost with co-payment features. Monthly subscription rates are $22.70 for a one-person contract, $36.26 for a two-person contract, and $39.76 for a family.

Now you have 5 choices including Metro Health Plan

If you live in Detroit or the suburbs, you can choose Metro Health Plan. With MHP, your family's health care needs are taken care of through conveniently-located, modern health centers and two fully-accredited hospitals. Monthly subscription rates for MHP are $24.49 for a one-person contract, $44.99 for a two-person contract, and $47.93 for a family.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield also offer two other Traditional Plans for people on their own with differing rates and benefits. It adds up to five good buys in health care protection. All from Blue Cross and Blue Shield.

Sampling of Bahamian life is captured along Nassau's waterfront as a local vendor tends her straw and vegetable stand (Photographed by Sue Rosiek)

Fishermen, vendors lend Nassau charm

By SUSAN ROSIEK

NASSAU, BAHAMAS—Day or night, visitors will never run out of things to do or sights to see in Nassau.

Located on New Providence Island, Nassau, the busy capital of the Bahamas, is flourishing.

Opportunities for relaxation and entertainment are endless. And, Nassau offers a refreshing mix of native Bahamian inns and modern luxury hotels and resorts.

During the day vacationers can enjoy golf, tennis, fishing, swimming, sailing and other water sports. For sightseers, horse -drawn surreys are available for tours through the town and around the island.

Another attraction is Bay Street, in downtown Nassau, with its open-air markets stocked with a variety of handmade Bahamian straw products.

An interesting side trip is walking along the pier as fisherman unload their daily catches, and listening to local vendors as they trade fresh fruits and vegetables.

Other Nassau highlights include the busy harbor, where schooners and international ships are constantly coming and going. Tourists also can explore the old colonial forts scattered along the countryside, visit government offices at Parliament Square and stroll through many lush tropical gardens.

Along with its miles of white-sand beaches, Nassau offers an exciting nightlife. Large hotels, nightclubs alive with calypso music, and gambling casinos are just a few of the night spots. Paradise Island, connected to Nassau by a bridge, features the second largest gambling house in the Western Hemisphere.

The restaurants and small cafes throughout the city offer interesting menus. The Bahamian dishes with conch, grouper and other local shellfish are delicious and well worth sampling. Nassau eateries also can accommodate the hamburger diehards.

Located off Florida's east coast, Nassau is interesting, exciting and most important to northern guests, warm (winter temperatures range in the mid-seventies). Tourists are welcomed and treated well, which only serves to complement the balmy climate, and colorful setting.

Depending on the time of year, golf, fishing and tennis tournaments are offered. The Bahamas "Goombay" Festival, from early June until early September, features parades dances and a host of other local activities.

Hotel accommodations in Nassau are available to suit every taste and budget. Flight service to Nassau is available from Detroit on Air Jamaica. Air service to the 700 other out-islands is available on Bahamasair, the local airline.

A FISHERMAN looks over his conch catch of the day

Cuisine and Duglass

Everything went wrong that day

By DUGLASS DUGLASS

My story begins, shortly after lunch was served, in the massive main kitchen of Detroit's Hotel Pontchartrain.

The aroma of broiled cheese from the Onion Soup Gratinee Les Halles, floated about the soiled, stainless inferno. Into the midst of an inevitable confrontation with disputing employees walked an unmistakable lady attired elegantly in a subtle fashion of silk, her coiffure of sterling radiance done in a style befitting a duchess.

After our introduction, by the director of food and beverage, Mel Sneddon, and the usual pomp that goes with intros, we parted ways.

There was something, perhaps the sound of her kind, unaffected voice, that left a warm feeling and a sense of complete composure. The exquisite scent of her perfume assured me of a lasting relationship.

I CAN, without reservation, reveal that it wasn't wine and roses from then on. Before my triumph as a professional chef was established, we had our differences of opinion.

One incident I recall very clearly was a pre-wedding dinner. We had gone over everything to assure perfection of the menu.

The mood was to be set in greys and soft white, accented in silver with lacy Boston ferns with subtle flames enhanced by a buffet of personalities in the chic restaurant Mediteranee.

On the morning of that eventful day, my produce man telephoned me to say that he was unable to obtain fresh strawberries due to a strike in California. On the previous evening the hotel unexpectedly was filled to capacity. A storm brought a planeful of people from Europe, who were touring the United States.

NEEDLESS TO say, breakfast and lunch became a hassle, and most of my time was spent translating our menu into French and back into English to the server. (My French wasn't that good but helping people order my food in a foreign language was loads of fun).

James Beard and I did a show together in the Versailles Ballroom for a social benefit that evening and he left an out-of-town guest for me to entertain until the departure of his plane the following afternoon.

After the morning trauma, I was finally ready to prepare the carefully detailed dinner menu for the soon-to-arrive guests. I was again interrupted, this time by towering flames, dancing their way up to the sprinkling system from the saute station where advanced cooks prepare delicate fare.

The flames managed to set off the fire alarm and the cooling water descended like the rains of Ranchipur, pouring down the oven shelves onto the range and down the slick sides of the ovens to the floor with its soft continuous flow, like a receding tide, and on into the freshly bathed dining room.

THE SCENIC water ballet continued its cascade of falls like the fantasy falls of Villa de'Est.

The strawberry on top of the sundae was when two of my employes telephoned to report they were sick—one hour before dinner was to commence.

I was, by then, beginning to develop a slight headache. This was a disaster.

The details are still too nerve-racking for further comment.

HOWEVER, the duchess entered my kitchen, like a gracious hostess would do at the finale of a meal, looking as lovely as she could be in black lame and a yard of diamonds around her soft marble shoulders.

Her delicate face had an expression of disfavor. I stood there in awe, not believing that this day could have ended in such a cruel way.

Why have all my priceless peers survived the times and I have failed? What could a 25-year-old chef do in front of a duchess but simply reply in a humble way, "I'm sorry."

Months passed by, without us speaking. I was completely shattered and childishly pouted about the kitchen, purposely avoiding any contact with my lady fair.

FINALLY, spring arrived with its healing charm, and the social event of the season, the May opera brought a series of dinners very much like the one mentioned earlier in this article, with the exception of the dessert.

Fresh snow was formed into a mountain with a sculptured spiral staircase formed by fresh strawberries stepping about the form, making this dessert very impressive.

Fresh limes were hollowed out and stuffed with sugar and lime chantilly for the dipping process to be done by the guest.

When the menu is a triumph, a chef well deserves the personal praise that I received from my buddy, Bernice Gershenson.

The food was exquisite, the drink divine, the flowers lovely, and the company sparkling. A good time was had by all. Thank God!

STRAWBERRY STAIRCASE
for 6 people
6 fresh limes cut in half widthwise, like a flower
3 quarts fresh strawberries
About 3 gallons of fresh-fallen snow
Wooden toothpicks (box)
½ pint whipped, whipping cream
1 tablespoon of sour cream
A few drops of pure vanilla extract
Some granulated sugar
About a dozen or two lemon leaves
1 cup of granulated sugar
Water

METHOD ONE

To form the cone simply take the fresh snow, and if it is flaky simply add a few drops of water to make it more compact. If you have a china cap or a conelike device that is about a foot-and-a-half tall, this would save you a lot of artistic trouble in forming the geometric cone.

Step One: Fill the cone device with the moist snow, packing firmly. Turn over on a round service tray like you would a jello mold.

METHOD TWO

On a 10-inch dinner plate or service tray, preferably round, place a paper doily. This will absorb moisture and prevent the cone from sliding.

Start off by taking the moist snow in small portions and pack it in the bottom. Continue to build up to a peak like a sand castle.

With a thin metal instrument (like a knife or a cake spatula) and a keen artist's eye, try to form the symmetry of the cone by thinly scraping all the sides and turning the cone as you scrape until it forms a mountain peak. Rubber gloves are helpful.

If the metal instrument is too cumbersome, simply embrace the cone with your hands, which are protected by the rubber gloves. With an upward and downward motion and a slight amount of pressure starting from the base, one can form the cone professionally.

With the plain toothpicks in hand, begin at the peak of the cone and insert one pick halfway into the peak. (This could represent the star at the top of a Christmas tree).

With one piece of string about three feet long, tie one end around the toothpick already in the cone and form a spiral from the top of the pick around the cone that extends for three complete turns, extending to the bottom of the cone where you will secure the string with another toothpick.

The spiraling string will indicate the insertion of the rest of the toothpicks.

Following the string and at a half-inch interval at the top, push in the toothpicks. as you progress down the tree, increase the interval or space of the toothpicks to compensate for the larger strawberries that will be used in the lower part of the cone.

Then, remove the string and store the cone in a freezing atmosphere.

Method for Lines

To form the flower effect, use a marking pencil on the lime and draw a zig-zag effect. Then with a thin paring knife, insert this instrument into the lime on the zig through the center and then on the zag.

Continue this process all the way around the fruit. Twist the fruit to separate it, and with your thumbnail inserted between the membrane and the pulp, loosen the fruit slowly in a circular motion until the pulp is removed.

Continue this process until all limes are completed. Squeeze the juice into the whipping cream and add the vanilla and sour cream and stir. Set aside.

In a heavy saucepan, add the sugar and water, bring to a boil and cook until the sugar turns a golden brown. Dip the base of the lime in the sugar candy and then immediately place in the center of a dessert dish.

Continue the process, allowing two lime flowers for each dessert plate. One will be filled with the cream and the other with the granulated sugar.

Each plate is placed in front of each guest. The strawberry cone that has been arranged with strawberries is to be placed in the center of the table and garnished at the base with lemon leaves.

The method for serving is simply to have your guests pluck a strawberry by the hull and dip it in the cream and then the sugar and finally eat the succulent fruit. Finger bowls should accompany the strawberry staircase with a chilled champagne.

MOTORISTS, no doubt, will be unhappy to learn that pot holes like those marking Sheldon Road are here to stay, at least for a while. Any major repairs to the roadway will have to come when the road is widened "sometime in the future," according to a Wayne County Road Commission spokesman. It seems the county is waiting for all of the right-of-way acquisitions before the widening project is begun. Those procedures "can be lengthy" according to the spokesman. Despite the fact that the Road Commission is "aware the road's in very bad shape," it appears everyone can do their best to avoid the muffler strewn route, or at least watch their speed. The Stroller

The sunny side of the street

By W.W. EDGAR

The Stroller was privileged recently to sit at the luncheon table and listen to Bud Guest regaling his audience with tales from the "Sunny Side of The Street."

As one chuckle followed another, he was more convinced than ever in the truth of the old saying, "apples don't fall too far from the trees."

As Bud stood at the microphone, spinning his yarns that have brought moments of joy to thousands of people, he was following in the footsteps of his famous dad, Eddie Guest, the famed poet of the Detroit Free Press.

IT OFTEN was said that few people started the day without first reading Eddie's poem that appeared in more than 400 papers. Years later, his offspring, Bud, was doing the same thing, only his voice was coming over the airwaves via the WJR program, "The Sunny Side of the Street."

AS BUD STOOD there smiling and gesturing with each tale, few in his audience realized that he was making a very courageous stand under very severe handicaps. Few realized that Bud couldn't see them—not even those in the front row—for during the past two years he has lost his eyesight and now is legally blind.

For most, this handicap would prove a real burden and keep them from taking an active part in life. Not Bud. He still views life from the sunny side of the street just as his father did years ago when the ravages of age would have slowed down many other persons.

AS HE SAT there, listening to the humorous tales, a flood of memories came rushing back to The Stroller. For it was the famed poet who invited him to Detroit more than a half century ago to travel along the journalistic trail. And it formed a friendship that lasted until death of the poet.

There were many times when he brought young Bud into the office and The Stroller got to know him when he was just a toddler. Later he worked with him on the Free Press and spent time with him at his desk at WJR.

The memory of the first meeting with Edgar A., the poet, is one that never will be forgotten—and it happened by accident.

THE POET was on his annual tour of the Chautaugua circuit and one of his stops was in Allentown Pa., on the same night as a football banquet at Muhlenberg College. Until two days before the banquet The Stroller had no thought of hearing the poet.

Then came a phone call telling him that so many persons wanted to hear Guest that the start of the banquet had been changed to late afternoon.

Little did The Stroller know this decision would be the turning point in his life. On the scheduled afternoon, he went to the banquet and later to hear Eddie Guest. He was so fascinated by the poet that he asked to meet him.

After chatting for a few minutes and relating some of his sports experiences, the poet said, "There are any number of big papers in this country that would gobble you up."

Then came the invitation to write a letter telling of his experiences so the poet could present it to the Free Press. The letter was written and 10 days later The Stroller was in Detroit.

And who was at the entrance of the Free Press building to greet him but Eddie Guest. He took The Stroller to the sports department, introduced him, and wished him well.

Several years later The Stroller was elevated to sports editor. As the notice was being placed on the bulletin board, and poet came through the hallway.

Spotting him, The Stroller walked over, told him of the promotion and attempted to thank him for providing the opportunity.

The poet smiled, then took a firm grip of The Stroller's hand and said, "I want to thank you. Do you realize what you have done for me? You have made me look so good. Just imagine the young lad I found away back in Pennsylvania taking over the sports editorship of our paper. It makes me feel good and proud."

That was Eddie Guest, always spreading warmth and happiness. And now his son, Bud ignoring a handicap that would stop most people, is carrying on from the "Sunny Side of the Street!"

Public hearings are for public

Editor:

At the meeting of Jan. 21 Canton Township Planning Commission, Chairman Joseph Kinnick exhibited blatant disregard and-or frightening ignorance of the purpose of a public hearing. "The requirement for public hearings is designed to allow members of the public to attend meetings and present views..." (Handbook of Michigan Township Zoning and Planning.)

However, Mr. Kinnick overwhelmingly catered to the responses of the builders and developers regarding the proposed ordinance changes on signs, PUDs, and lot sizes, while being noticeably annoyed that he must allow the general public to speak. The term "public hearing" should have been changed to "support your local builder night" to more accurately reflect the proceedings.

Moreover, it is true the residents of Canton Township, who regularly attend planning commission meetings have become accustomed to the constant barrage of builders and developers assaulting their intelligence.

For example, one builder disavowed any knowledge of neighboring Plymouth Township's restrictive sign ordinance, yet at the same time expounded at great length on the liberal ordinances in Madison Heights, Troy and Warren.

Nevertheless, it is so ludicrous to allow the situation to degenerate to the point that Kinnick openly solicited developer Dick Lewiston's preference for the writing of the PUD ordinance. Noticeably conspicuous by its absence was Kinnick's equal concern for the preference of a resident of Canton Township.

Although builders and developers do invest substantially in their property, proportionally, the residents of Canton Township likewise invest substantially in their property. The time is long past due when Canton Township residents are not treated like second class citizens at public hearings, because they seek to live in Canton rather than exploit it.

March of Dimes gets poetic help

Jamie.
She never saw the trees,
The sky,
Or all the colored leaves.
Jamie was born blind.

These are the opening lines of a very special contribution to the Livonia March of Dimes campaign.

The poem was penned by Franklin High School junior Sheri Wojcik, who was touched by the sweet face of Jamie Weaver, National Foundation poster child who was born blind.

"I was cleaning the kitchen," Sheri explained, "and I found this envelope with the picture of Jamie and a request for contributions to the March of Dimes.

"Looking at the picture, it struck me as so sad she had never been able to see—that people don't seem to care enough about these children. So I wrote the poem."

SHERI'S LITTLE POEM about Jamie and other children with birth defects—they're the ones helped by the March of Dimes campaign each January— went into the contribution enveloped by itself.

"I wanted to send some money," she explained, "but it was almost Christmas and I was broke.

"I decided to send a message. I thought it would help a little."

She explained in a letter that went with the poem that she hoped realization of the tragedy of birth defects "will get to more and more people so they too can stop and think about how it really is."

Doris DeDeckere, public relations director for the Metropolitan Detroit Chapter of the National Foundation March of Dimes relayed the poem, suggesting it might be just the thing for the kick-off of the January campaign.

JAMIE WAS ON HAND in Detroit for the recent luncheon opening the metropolitan area campaign, and at that time she met Steve Powell and Janne Carron, both Detroit-area children with the birth defect known as spinal bifida, or open spines.

Sheri was pleased to see another picture of the sightless little girl when she stopped by this newspaper office to have her own photo taken.

She had to take time out of a busy schedule that includes drama club and debate club at Franklin and work as student director of the school musical.

Sheri, who moved to Livonia last August with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wojcik, and two brothers, Steve and Scott, isn't new to the March of Dimes and other drives to help the less fortunate.

In New Baltimore, where the family lived before, she helped collect funds both for the National Foundation and for Muscular Dystrophy.

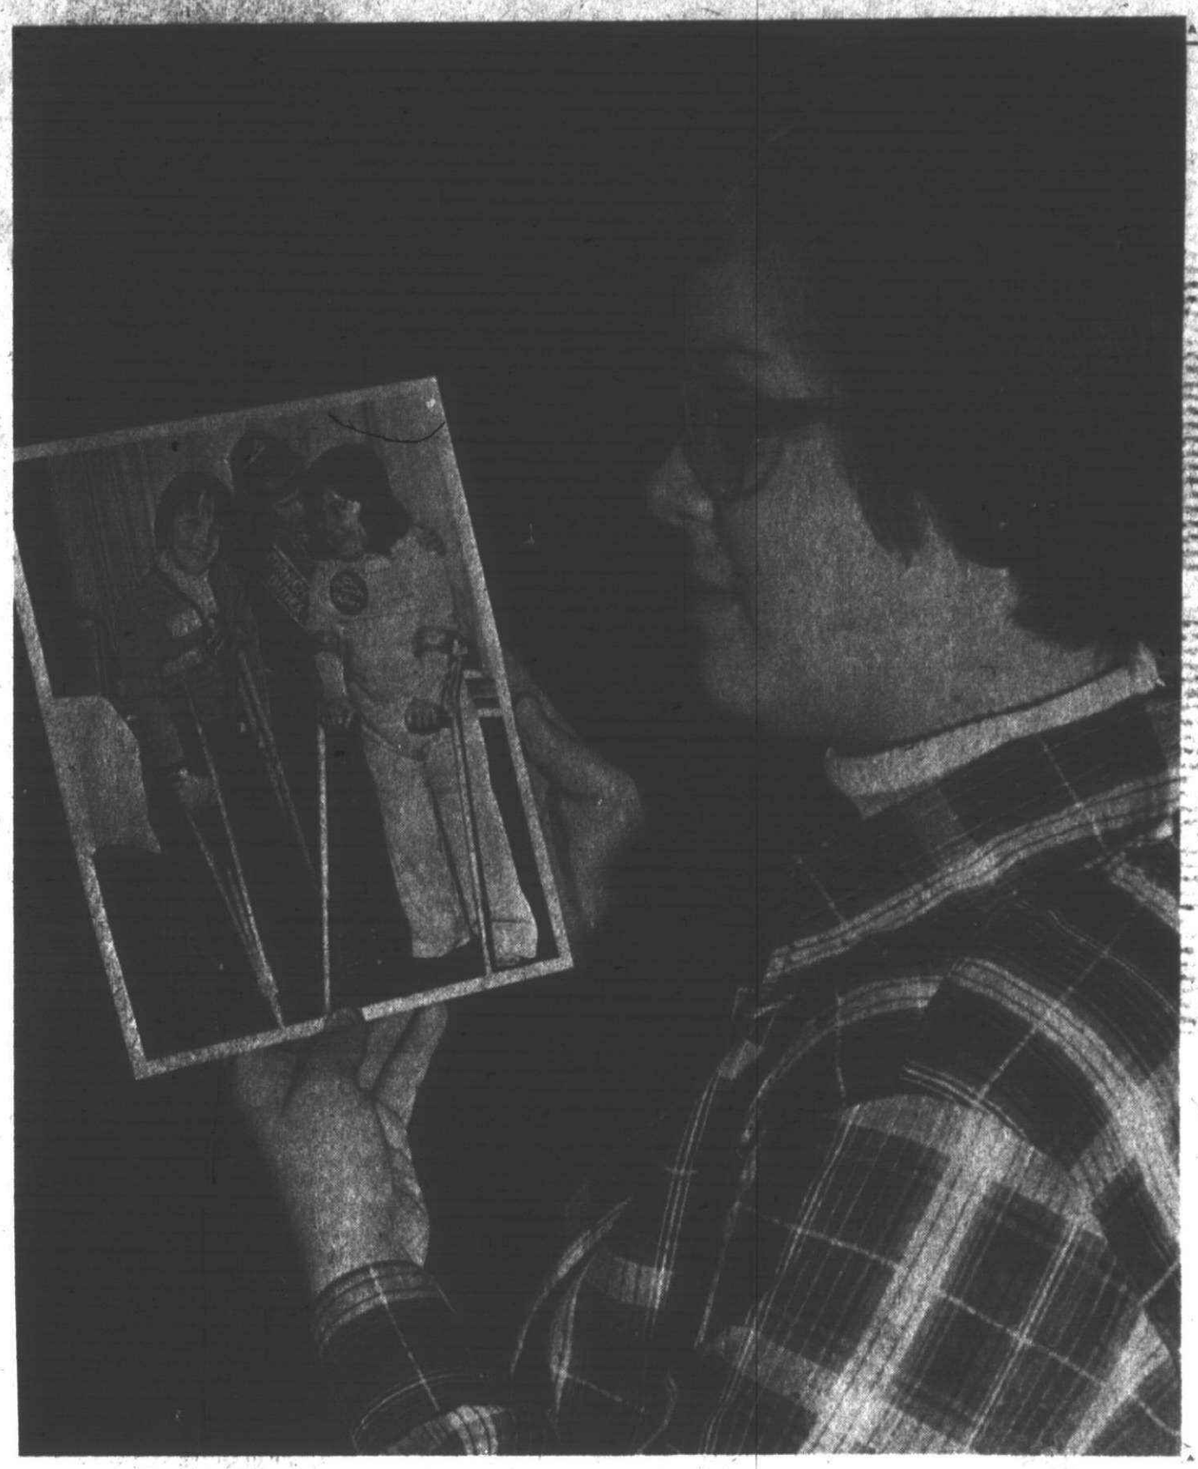

Writing poetry isn't new, either. She has several notebooks full of her own work, but this is the first time she ever sent one of her poems to anyone else.

She did it this time, though, to get people thinking about these children, and maybe get others in this area to send some contributions to the Livonia March of Dimes at the City National Bank, Box 2659.

Why do we, the fortunate,
Go on letting them be?
Just a little help
Is what they need.
The help only can come from you,
And me.

Give them your love
They ask no pity.
They too are people.

Let us go forth
And spread our love,
So they can walk, hear, feel and see.
If not,
Let the pity be on you
And me.

PWP chapters launch cooperative program

"Newer Sexual Therapies," a lecture to be given by Dr. Lawrence Cantow, Friday, Jan. 31 in Southfield, will inaugurate a new program of cooperation between the area chapters of Parents Without Partners, sponsor of the event.

DAN BICK

To this program and two succeeding ones to be held in the Southfield Civic Center, members of all chapters in the area have been invited.

In turn each chapter will publicize the event in its newsletter, encourage its members to come and see that no local chapter event conflicts with the dates of the three programs.

"We have alwars had informal cooperation," said Dan Bick, coordinator of the Southfield PWP. "Now the cooperation will be more structured."

DR. CANTOW, consultant to the sexual therapy clinic at Lafayette Clinic, will discuss the difference between making love and having sex..

A clinical associate professor in the department of psychiatry at Wayne State University school of medicine, Dr. Cantow has taken post-graduate study at the Institute for Behavior Therapy and has studied at the Masters and Johnson Biology Research Foundation.

The meeting will begin at 8:30 p.m., as will two succeeding programs to take place Feb. 7 and Feb. 21 in the Southfield Center at Evergreen and Civic Center Drive.

"Learn, Modify, Change?" a program dealing with the Directive Parental Counseling System, will be the Feb. 7 offering. Raymond M. Daly and Cornelius J. Holland, both having doctoral degrees, will explain a 30-step delivery process, in clearly defined sequence, that a parent can use to modify the behavior of his children.

Each is an associate member of the Center for Behavioral Psychiatry and Psychology in Birmingham.

BARBARA HICKEY of the Warren chapter and Dan Bick of the Southfield PWP will lead an interactional meeting Feb. 21, during which members of the audience will be divided into small discussion groups.

"The purpose of PWP is basically to educate," said Bick, who in addition to being Southfield coordinator is also regional ethics and grievance chairperson of the 20 PWP chapters in the Eastern Michigan Regional Council.

"Our organization tries to assist those who need help as a single parent," he added. "We are not a singles social club, although we do have social programs for both adults and children."

At the same time, Bick admitted there had been eight marriages in the Southfield chapter during the past 12 months.

He noted that in addition to educational programs for adults, there are four or five children's activities in the Southfield chapter including ice skating, skiing and tennis.

Instruction in these sports usually is free, as it is provided by a PWP member.

"PWP TOOK ME out of a period of wallowing to getting very involved in our chapter's theater group," said Bick. "It also gave me the chance to find new adult male friends as well as female ones. During the four months I've been a member I've had a lot of personal growth and a lot of satisfaction.

"It's been a place for my kids to gather with others in like circumstances. It helped them cope with the problem of having parents who were getting a divorce."

PWP chapters in this area include the Birmingham-Bloomfield chapter 289, which meets the first and third Tuesday of the month at 8 p.m. in the Birmingham Unitarian Church, 651 Woodward, in Bloomfield Hills, and Cross Roads chapter 245, which meets on the second Friday of the month at 8 p.m. in St. John United Methodist Church, 3505 Rochester, Royal Oak.

Livonia chapter 130 meets on the second and fourth Wednesday of the month at 8 p.m. in Idyl Wyld Golf Club, 35780 Five Mile, Livonia. Novi-Northland meets on the second and fourth Fridays at 8 p.m. in the First Presbyterian Church, 200 E. Main, Northville.

The Rochester chapter holds meetings the second and fourth Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Rochester Golf and Country Club, located one street north of M59, between Rochester Road and John R.

Southfield-Lathrup meets in the Southfield Civic Center, on the first and third Fridays at 8:30 p.m. Somerset Inn on Big Beaver, west of Crooks in Troy, is the meeting place of the Troy chapter on the second and fourth Tuesday of the month.

The Warren group meets in the First Methodist Church, 5005 Mound, in Warren on the first and third Thursdays at 8 p.m. The Wayne-Westland chapter meets on the first and third Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. in the Hawthorne Valley Country Club, Merriman, north of Warren.

Women on the Go

'Family communication' begins with her family

Putting together a course on family relationships, Dorothy Murphy of the Wayne-Westland YMCA decided to try out on her own family an exercise in value clarification.

It involved the actions of five characters in a hypothetical situation and a personal rating of the ethics of these actions.

And Dorothy, her businessman husband Jim Murphy, and their three children ranging in age from 15 to nine came up with five different ratings for the fictional characters.

"Which just shows," this class leader and mother decided, "how differently people can view the same situation.

"You just can't expect everyone's values to be the same as yours.".

THAT'S A MAJOR tenet of the "Talk to Me" family communication workshop Mrs. Murphy will head—"really, I'll be leading it more than teaching it"—beginning Tuesday, Jan. 28 in the Wayne-Westland Y, located at 827 S. Wayne Road.

The four 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. sessions will be held in the Westland location instead of the originally-scheduled Livonia Family Y "because we had more people sign up from this area," Mrs. Murphy said. A few places still are open.

Leading it is a first for the Westland branch's program coordinator and office manager, and she is looking forward to some lively discussion in the sessions.

"We'll do some looking at road blocks to family communication, and some talking about values and some thinking about how to send 'I' messages," she said.

"These things can be very important in family inter-actions," she said.

"I KNOW I used to have a lot of roadblocks in communications with my own family. Probably I still have them, but at least I'm learning to recognize them and try to find solutions."

Mrs. Murphy said one of the hardest things to accept is the differences in values from generation to generation, individual to individual.

"A big step in family communication comes when we learn to accept behavior that may not be just like ours but does not infringe on our own rights," she explained.

In that category goes certainly the matters of dress and hair styles, she added, "and maybe the problem of marijuana smoking too."

"TALK TO ME" really is a sampler course leading to several offered by YMCAs in this area, Mrs. Murphy said. She prepared for being a leader by working with Barbara Fischer, coordinating a family communications skills package for area Y branches.

Dorothy Murphy came onto the Y staff three years ago and up to now has worked with pre-school and kindergarten classes as well as leading Indian Maiden programs and adult physical fitness classes for women.

"That's the program coordinating," she said. "As office manager I do a bit of shoving and pushing furniture too. And it's all part of a good learning experience."

BEFORE JOINING THE STAFF she did volunteer work for the Y in many capacities and also has been a Girl Scout leader, day camp director, and active church worker at Kirk of the Savior in Westland.

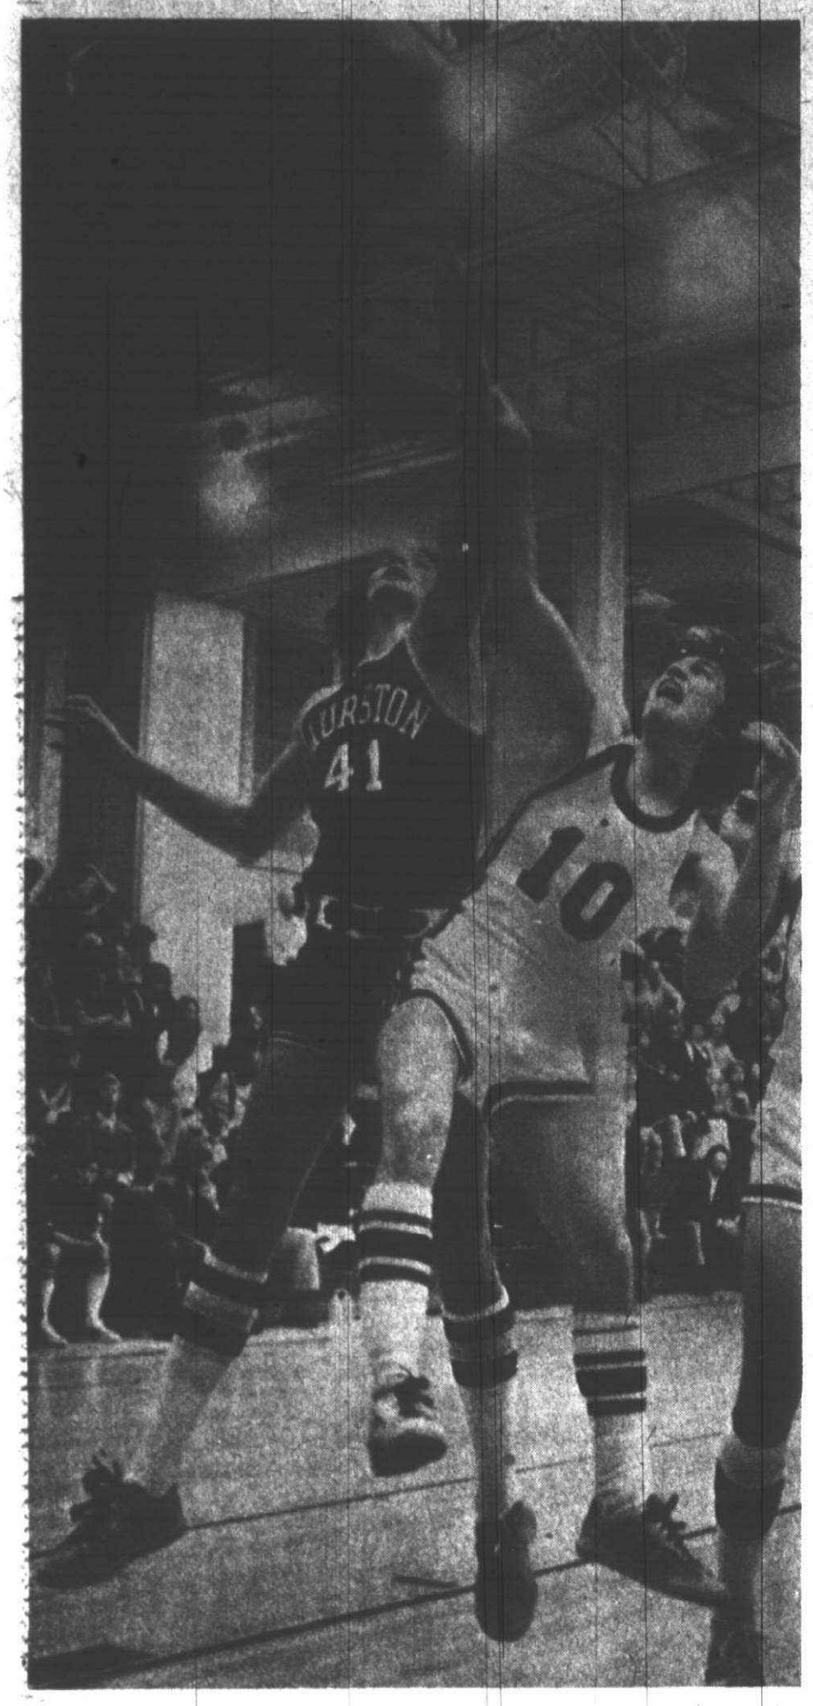

She also served on the steering committee for the Wayne-Westland Art Association and on the advisory council for the Westland Recreational Advisory Council.

Her husband, who is in insurance, is a former chairman of the Y branch's board of managers, headed a recent millage campaign for the Wayne-Westland school district and is an elder at Kirk of the Savior.

Their children are Michelle, 15, a John Glenn High School sophomore involved in orchestra and girls' track; Michael, 14-year-old junior high student and lover of animals, and Patrick, 9.

Panthers roar, 62-51

GC East thumps Thurston

Garden City East Panthers downed a dogged Thurston team Friday night, 62-51, for their fifth win in six Northwest Suburban League starts and remained a game behind Westland John Glenn, a 55-49 victor over North Farmington.

Although Billy Joe Young's runner-up club was outscored from the floor, 23-22, in field goals, it sank a torrid 18 of 22 free throws while the visiting Eagles managed only five of 14.

"I don't care how many field goals either team has," Young said after the game. "We had the lead and we were fouled several times and didn't get a chance to sink a field goal. But when our boys went to the free throw line, they were deadly tonight."

It's unbelievable, but the victory marked the first time this season that Garden City East went over the .500 mark, as it now stands 6-5 on the season.

With the score tied at 12-all, Greg Emery, who tied Thurston's Dave Polidori for game scoring honors with 18, sank two free throws and teammate Jim Riley did likewise to give East a 16-12 first period lead.

East's Ken Tomaszewski scored six in the opening stanza and six more in the second period as East led at halftime, 35-25. Panther guard Jim Peter also sank six while Eagle Cory Rodriguez responded with seven.

East used six points by Emery and four each by Riley and Wally Krol to build up a 51-35 third quarter advantage. Despite Polidori's six quick points which helped bring Thurston back to 56-49 with four minutes left, Riley canned four charity tosses and Emery two to put the game away. Tomaszewski scored 14, Riley 10 and Rodriguez 13 points.

East hit 22 of 55 shots for 40 per cent, grabbed 40 rebounds and had 18 turnovers to Thurston's 23 baskets in 61 tries for 38 per cent, 31 rebounds and 19 floor mistakes.

West crushes Riverside

By JIM BRADLEY

Basketball fans better remember the name – Mike Susko.

The 6-foot-6 Garden City West center is only a junior and is bringing back fond memories of another Tiger star, Rick Drewitz, who almost led West to a state title in 1970.

"Mighty Mike" moves like a guard and has a deadly one-hander from anywhere near the free-throw line. Susko used all these moves and much more as he poured in 30 points in less then three periods Friday night as West annihilated Dearborn Heights Riverside, 79-47.

Besides his great rebounding, the scoring splurge gave Susko 58 points in his last two games, gave West a 7-1 Tri-River League record and was the Tigers' eighth consecutive win and 11-2 overall.

Deadly Dave Niles, another outstanding junior, pumped in 20 points for West in slightly more then three periods as West sped to quarter leads of 22-16, 47-20, 63-36 over the outclassed Rebels.

Paul Wild was the only visitor in double figures with 12 points.

The victory sets up the clash between Chris Babler's league-leading Tigers and second place Cherry Hill Friday night at Garden City West. Bob Fowler drilled in 29 points in leading his Spartans to a 50-47 victory in the first meeting, but Susko and his teammates are anxious for this week's rematch.

Susko, who could have scored 50 points against Riverside, had 12 in the first quarter and 12 more in the second for 24 at halftime. He added three baskets in the third quarter before leaving midway through the period.

It was the third straight league game that West had won by more than 20 points.

Bulldogs bite Allen Park, 75-70

The Bulldogs of Bentley High, who play four of their final five games of the cage campaign in their "candlelight gym", remained unbeaten at home in Suburban Elght action in a 75-70 victory over Allen Park.

Bentley led after one quarter, 18-16, 43-32 at the half and 57-46 after three quarters. The Bulldogs hung on in the final minutes with Allen Park outscoring Bentley, 23-18, in the last quarter to close the gap to five at the buzzer.

Free throw shooting kept Bentley in command at the end. The Bulldogs who connected on 19 of 26 overall, made good 10 of 14 in the last quarter with Dan Dinsmore popping in seven of eight.

From the field, Bentley hit on 28 of 51 for 54 per cent.

Northville Mustangs corral Canton Chiefs, 66-50

By FRED DeLANO

A six-man, 21-point barrage in the third quarter gave once beaten Northville the momentum for a 66-50 basketball victory over a Plymouth Canton quintet which had battled the Western Six leader eyeball to eyeball in a 25-all first half.

"They found the range, we didn't," was Canton Coach Casey Cavell's accurate assessment of the second half Northville surge which lifted the Mustangs to a 12-1 mark for the season and kept them out in front of the Western Six chase with a 5-1 loop record.

CANTON'S CHIEFS, in contrast, disappointed their largest home crowd of the campaign by dropping to 6-7 overall and 3-3 in the league. However, they gave it a real shot for two periods during which the lead changed hands seven times and the score was tied on four other occasions.

But then Northville's fine balance started paying off as Chris Armada, Scott Leu, Mike Campbell, Al Benedict, Bill Piccolo and Tom Eis combined for 21 big ones in the third stanza to only 10 from Canton's trio of Ray Mandle, Tom Close and Rick Thorn.

With that 46-35 cushion at the three quarter mark, the Mustangs then capitalized on frequent Plymouth fouls in the final period to outscore the Chiefs again in that eight-minute segment, 20-15.

"It was the best we've played in several weeks," said Coach Walt Koepke whose Mustangs have been beaten only by Farmington Harrison and who may be on their way to one of the greatest seasons in Northville history.

"And don't forget it was two juniors, Armada and Piccolo, who came off the bench in the second half to lead the comeback," added Koepke.

His point was well made, for with four men scoring in double figures the scorebook showed that Armada got his 11 and Piccolo 10 all after intermission. Leading the Mustangs overall were Campbell with 13 and Leu with 12, both of them scoring in every period.

Tom Close was high for Plymouth with 14, trailed by Dave Edwards with 11.

PLYMOUTH GOT the lead its first time at 7-6 on a three-pointer by Edwards midway in the first quarter and with the big football tackle completing the period with seven points the Chiefs led at that point, 17-13. Two buckets by Close and singles from Brian Stemberger, Ron Lack and Rick Thorn were added factors in putting Canton out in front.

Campbell, Leu and Benedict carried Northville to a 19-all deadlock, but Edwards, Close and Lack pushed the Chiefs to the fore again at 25-21 with only 32 seconds left in the half.

However, the wild and wooly scramble saw Eis and Benedict each drop in a pair of charity shots before the buzzer sent the teams off the floor knotted at 25-all. It was Campbell who gave Northville the lead for keeps by canning a rebound that made it 29-27 early in the third period and from then on it was all down hill for the Mustangs.

NORTHVILLE (66): Armada 4, 3-7, 11; Leu 6, 0-1, 12; Campbell 6, 1-2, 13; Benedict 2, 4-5, 8; Piccolo 2, 6-6, 10; Eis 3, 3-4, 9; Boland 0,0-0,0; Crisan 1, 1-2, 3. Totals 24, 18-27, 66.

St. Agatha's 'best shot yet' fails

St. Agatha's "best effort of the season" fell four points shy of upsetting the No. 10 state-ranked team in Class C basketball.

St. Florian, now a 13-2 club that had earlier in the year ripped apart St. Agatha, 78-47, just got by the Aggies this time around, 61-57.

"No question about it," commented Aggie coach Jim George. "This had to be our finest effort yet and it looks like we found the right combination.

"It was ours and we lost it."

St. Agatha slipped ahead after one quarter, 20-18, and held a 36-29 margin at the half. The Aggies exploded to a 14 point lead midway in the third and George had to have visions of a major upset in the making.

But it wasn't to be as the Aggies went scoreless in the final minutes of the third and St. Florian sliced it to 49-43 with eight minutes remaining.

St. Agatha lost its "big man" on the boards in Bob Brazzil and St. Florian took the fourth, 18-8, and the ballgame by four points.

The Aggies wound up 22 of 58 from the floor for a 38 per cent and St. Florian, 25 of 57 for 44 per per cent. Greg Sipus turned in the finest individual effort yet by an Aggie this season with a 28-point night.

St. Agatha is at St. Andrew this Friday, Jan. 31. Box score:

Mott cagers rout Churchill, 66-49

With seven games remaining, Pat Montagano's Churchill cagers appear to be heading somewhere near the 4-16 mark predicted of them by the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

And Montagano isn't at all happy about proving the paper right.

"We just can't cope with anyone," said the Charger head mentor whose cagers fell to Waterford Mott, 66-49. "Heck, Mott just toyed with us. They could have completely destroyed us.

"Things just haven't been developing on our team like I thought they would."

The Mott defeat was the fourth straight for the now 3-10 Charger unit which travels to Farmington Harrison this Friday, Jan. 31.

Churchill could muster only an 18 for 59 show from the floor for 31 per cent with Matt Foster high man with 13 points. Box score:

Glenn cagers smother North, 55-49

By TOM BAER

Westland John Glenn's basketball team is known for its fast break, but the running game wasn't really a factor in the Rockets' 55-49 victory over North Farmington Friday in a Northwest Suburban League game.

"We ran pretty well, but we didn't always carry it off," said Glenn coach Gordon Davis, whose squad is now 13-1 overall this season. "Our shooting was way off."

Glenn shot only 32 per cent from the floor, but the Rockets' big break came at the free-throw line where they converted 19 of 26. North Farmington made five more field goals than Glenn, but the Raiders had just five chances at the line.

Another factor was Glenn's defense, a zone trap with special emphasis on North's Dan Werner, who scored 20 points the last time the two teams met.

"We tried to force them to shoot from the outside," Davis said. "In the end it worked pretty well, but I thought they were never going to miss early in the game.

North started strong, taking a 10-3 lead in the early minutes and maintained a 12-6 margin after one quarter.

BUT GLENN got hot in the second quarter, outpointing the Raiders, 23-14 to take a three-point lead at halftime. Terry Johnson, a 6-3 forward, led the comeback with seven points in the quarter. Johnson finished with 20 points for the night to tie North's Kevin Gasior for game scoring honors.

Coach Ken Dean's Raiders staged a comeback of their own in the third quarter, pulling to within one point (37-36) at quarter's end. Gasior's bucket with 5:20 left in the game gave North a brief lead at 42-41. But then John Jesson, Glenn's 6-1 playmaker, scored two quick baskets, and Johnson dropped in two free throws to put the game away.

"That's a good club," Dean said of his opposition. "Look at their free-throw shooting. Had they missed a lot of those, it might have been a different game. They do the things you have to do to win."

North's statistics show the Raiders holding a 40-28 rebounding advantage. Mike Morrow, the tallest Raider at 6-4, grabbed 10. North was guilty of 18 turnovers, while Glenn lost the ball nine times on bad plays.

Glenn, which lost its opening game to nonleague Inkster Cherry Hill, plays next on Friday (Jan. 31) at Livonia Franklin. North, now 4-10 overall, travels to Garden City East for a NSL game on Friday. Both games start at 8 p.m.

By W.W. EDGAR

There was a time, not too many years ago, when it was considered quite a feat when a bowler rolled a 600 series. In those days a fellow who could average 200 was rated just about the greatest thing ever to come along.

But things have changed all along the tenpin front and now 600 series are quite commonplace.

A fine example was furnished during the past 10 days when Classic bowlers at Bel-Aire lanes in Farmington turned in 130 games above 200 and 88 series above double century figures. This was followed last Tuesday night by a high scoring spree at Wonderland Lanes in Livonia where 45 sharpshooters beettered the 600 mark.

Meanwhile there were two series above 700 in each establishment— a feat that was thought well nigh impossible a few decades ago.

The marksmen who broke the 700 barrie at Wonderland were Tom Ranes, who linked games of 267, 253 and 258 for 778, and Jeff Messisco, who had a middle game of 289 in 721. And the Wesi Motors team posted a 3303 that didn't even 'make the board'.

WHAT BROUGHT about the great change in scoring?

All kinds of reasons have been advanced, but in the main, the hmgh scoring is the result of more uniform pins and the switch in lane finishes from shellac to lacquer.

The modern plastic coated pins provide the bowler with an even target at all times. In the days of the old wooden pins they were all shapes and sizes because of the terrific pounding.

And the finishes used now provide a more even lane bed than shellac that had a tendancy to develop a 'track' for the bowlers and cause the changes from one shift to another.

Bowlers still complain–especially after the lanes have been 'dressed'. But there is little reason for it, as witness the scores at Bel-Aire and Wonderland where the lanes were given a new coat of finish within the past 10 days.

"THIS IS ONE of the greatest thrills of my career," Ann Setlock, day manager at Garden Lanes, commented when she saw her listed with the nation's top average bowlers in both the five year and 10 year categories.

" I've been thrilled by being placed in the Detroit Hall of Fame, and again when I rolled my 300 game. But this new honor has given me a lift like I never had before."

BARBARA HAUSCH learned the pressure of high scoring this week in the Westland Ladies Classic.

After posting games of 231 and 233, the thought of what she might be headed for gripped her and she slumped to 173 for a 637 series.

Among the others with high games were Jane Martin with 234 in 554 and Tina Brithine with a 232.

THE LOW AVERAGE bowlers had quite a time of it at Garden Lanes. Jean Dust, who carries a 107 average, came through with a series of 405 and Jean Kalimovik, with a 117 average, toppled the pins for a 439 series.

Meanwhile, in the Moose League, Jeff Melendez had one of his best nights with a 265 in 684.

THERE WERE TWO unusual performances at Livonia Lanes. Eric Wagner, who boasts a 188 average in the junior house league put together games of 225, 195 and 254 for a 674, and John Hahn went 110 pins over his average with a high single game of 266.

Dot Fulton literally ran away with top honors in the Livonia Ladies Classic when she won high series with a count of 534-102–636. This included victory in the second game of the singles with 177-34–211 and a triumph in the third with 205-34–239. The other single went to Gerry Zande who registered a 169-39–208.

This is the last week of the Bowling Propreitors big charity tournament and it isn't too late to do your part.

10th loss for Clarenceville

Trojans tumble, 69-41

Things are getting to be monotonous for the West Bloomfield basketball team.

The Hustling Lakers hustled themselves to a 16-2 first quarter lead and coasted in for their ninth victory in 11 games this season by a 69-41 margin.

Unfortunately for Clarenceville, the monotony goes the same way for them as the Trojans saw their record fall to 3-9.

It was no contest from the start as West Bloomfield ran its fast break to perfection, scoring easily and often against a non-existant Clarenceville defense.

The Trojans were consistently beaten down the floor by the West Bloomfield break and were unable to set up their zone.

At the same time, the Laker man-to-man defense and superior height were taking their tolls.

CLARENCEVILLE committed numerous turnovers in the first quarter and when the Trojans did manage to get a shot off, they were effectively blocked off by the taller Lakers.

Rick McGowan scored six points in that first quarter and 13 for the night.

But it was the work of 6-3 senior forward John Van Acker that was the most pleasant sight for West Bloomfield which has been plagued with injuries at that position.

Van Acker was given the tough assignment of guarding Clarenceville's high-scoring George Scholes. Scholes scored only two points while Van Acker was doing the defensive work and got only three six more when Laker coach Tim Domke started to substitute.

"Van Acker just did a super job against Scholes," said assistant West Bloomfield coach Ken Smith.

WEST BLOOMFIELD regulars played almost the entire first half and the subs played out the majority of contest.

The game was a repeat in history. West Bloomfield beat the Trojans 75-39 a month ago on the West Bloomfield floor.

West Bloomfield returns to league action next Friday when the Lakers travel to Milford. Game time is 6:30 for the reserves, 8:00 for the varsity.

Belleville Tigers blitz RU Panthers, 78-55

"They blew us out of the gym about as easy as Plymouth Salem did," he added.

It was RU's eighth defeat overall in 13 games.

Belleville jumped off to a 22-10 first quarter lead and romped to a 23-9 second quarter advantage to lead at the half, 45-19.

The second half saw RU capture a 36-33 margin but the deed had been done in the first 16 minutes.

Belleville connected on 33 of 70 from the field for a 47 per cent and RU, 22 of 65 for 34 per cent.

"We are a 34 per cent club come hell or high water," finished Andrews whose Panthers host Dearborn Friday (Jan. 31) and travel to Allen Park and Trenton next week. Box score:

TOPCO PRODUCTS WITH "BUILT-IN" SAVINGS!

FOOD CLUB, Top Frost, Gayla, Topco, Baby Soft and Valiant are a few of the first quality TOPCO brands you'll find at Meijer.

THE TOPCO LABEL is also shared by other supermarket chains throughout the United States, allowing us to offer a more selection and better values to our customers.

TOPCO also offers several brands for the budget conscious shopper including Gaylord, Top Spread, Beacon and Springcrest. These brands are good values in their price range. Some are most popular items.

TOPCO MEANS ECONOMY. Topco products, both food and non-food, are usually priced a penny or two lower, but often a nickel, dime, or more than a comparable national brand item. Lower prices are possible for several reasons.

TOPCO exists to supply members with the private label merchandise. There's no need for a costly sales force. TOPCO ships direct, eliminating the need for "middle handling". TOPCO saves the high cost of national advertising.

TOPCO MEANS QUALITY. Topco policy works to assure that their first quality products are equal to or better than leading national brands. Product development, field quality control, and constant lab inspection makes Topco consistently tops.

TRY TOPCO! You can have economy and quality too. Grouping together, the Topco organization makes it possible.

NATIONALLY ADVERTISED FAVORITES? We carry national brands as well. We attempt to keep a balance between Topco and leading national brands---giving you, the consumer, the final choice.

WE'RE PROUD OF TOPCO. Whether it's Food Club for dairy and grocery products, Top Frost for Frozen Foods, Gayla for Soft Drinks, Topco for Household Supplies or any of the list of Topco brands and products, we believe you'll find the highest quality at the lowest price possible.

MEIJER HAS BEEN featuring Topco items for over 19 years to a growing list of satisfied customers who like the top quality and the built-in savings!
